

SAN FRANCISCO'S MAIN ATTRACTIONS

- One great way to explore the city is by taking a San Francisco City Tour – The front desk can arrange your tour (with or without a trip to Alcatraz) and have the tour-bus pick you up and drop you off right in front of our Inn. Tickets are available from the front desk. If you so choose, there are also city tours available in the following foreign languages: German, Spanish, Italian, French, Japanese and Korean. The front desk can also provide information on a number of other tour packages to sites outside of San Francisco such as Napa Valley, Sausalito, Muir Woods, and Monterey / Carmel.
- Golden Gate Bridge – 101 North, Vista Point, $5 Toll. This beautiful old red-orange bridge has become the defining symbol of the Bay Area. The bridge is easy to approach by car or tour bus. Once you're there, walk or bicycle across to slowly savor the experience. There's no bad time to cross the bridge – unless you're a commuter in rush-hour traffic. The views are spectacular by day or night. On the north side, the Vista Point parking lot is free and open every day from 7am to 7pm, but there's a four-hour limit. The Southeast parking lot is metered, so bring some quarters. Vista Point, on the Marin side of the bridge, is one of the most popular picture-taking spots in the Bay Area.
- Fishermen's Wharf – Get up early and greet the sunrise and brisk bay air with a hearty walk on the piers and along Jefferson Street, making sure to take a turn into Fish Alley. Known for its historic waterfront, delicious seafood, spectacular sights and unique shopping, Fisherman's Wharf offers a wide array of things to do for everyone. The opening of crab season in November is a festive occasion. It is the day when the cauldrons along Fisherman's Wharf are lighted, ready to receive the boxes piled high with Dungeness crab hoisted from the decks of the first boats that come chuffing back into port. It is a time for gourmet feasting that will last through the weeks and months to follow.
- Cable Cars – Hanging off the side as you whiz down hills and around corners is a quintessential San Francisco experience. If you're in San Francisco, you've got to ride the cable cars at least once. Either hop on a cable car as you walk along its route or pick up the line at either Cable Car turnaround points (located at Fisherman's Wharf & Union Square). The system has been in place since 1873 and there are three unique lines to choose from California, Hyde-Powell and Mason-Powell. With these three unique lines you're able to see the city from a great view.
- Cable Car Barn & Museum – This museum displays the history of San Francisco's cable cars and the underground cables that actually pulled the cars along the tracks. Great place to take pictures and learn about the history of the cable cars. (FREE) It is located at 1201 Mason St @ Washington St - 415-474-1887.
- Lombard St / Crookedest Street – “The Crookedest Street in the World”, a moniker stemming from the fact that, in 1922, city engineers crammed eight cobblestone switchbacks into a single steep block of Lombard. The goal was to provide relief from the hair-raising slope; the inadvertent result was a tourist site. Hairpin turns are only part of the attraction. Lombard's crazy-curve block is lined with handsome houses and adorned with copious hydrangeas. The high point, atop Russian Hill, offers stupendous views of the San Francisco Bay, Alcatraz, and the city. Add to this the fact that the Hyde Street cable car deposits visitors at the top of the picturesque incline and the Crookedest Street could hardly have escaped notice.
- Alcatraz – Escape from the mainland to this legendary prison for a thrilling tour behind bars. Perhaps the most famous ex-jail in the world, "The Rock" draws thousands. We recommend the Blue and Gold Fleet, departing from Pier 41 up to 16 times a day. Be sure and get the audio tour, a magnificently done pastiche of history and recreation. Alcatraz is Spanish for "Pelican".
- Pier 39 – Carnival-like atmosphere that is as essential to San Francisco's allure as the Golden Gate Bridge. It's a good starting point for all sorts of fun tourist activities. You can purchase any number of items (i.e. t-shirts, postcards, etc.) to prove you were here. The local jugglers and carousel give the area a family-friendly, circus-like atmosphere. It's like stepping into several postcards of our city by the bay. You can spot Alcatraz, the Bay Bridge, the Golden Gate Bridge, the Marin headlands and the tip of the Transamerica building from the center of the pier. With more than 110 stores, 11 full-service restaurants with bay views and numerous fun-filled attractions including arcades, aquariums and snorting sea lions - Pier 39 is enjoyable for the whole family.

- Chinatown – Much more than a tourist attraction - one of the city's most culturally aware, culinary delectable neighborhoods. With its crowded streets, bustling markets, mysterious alleys, hidden temples and busy restaurants, Chinatown is San Francisco's most colorful neighborhood. It is also among the most famous, and therefore teems with visitors. A formal tour of Chinatown starts at the Chinatown Gateway, a dragon-crowned portal located on the corner of Bush and Grant. Originally known as Dupont Street, the road was notorious for its opium dens and gambling halls. Today, Grant Avenue is notorious for its number of shops selling jade jewelry, clay Buddha statues, electronics and kites. The hustle and bustle of Chinatown's daily life can be found on Stockton Street, where the sights and smells of the herbalist shops and the fish and produce markets recall Shanghai circa 1930.
- San Francisco City Hall – Designed in 1915 by architect Arthur Brown, this French Renaissance-style Beaux Arts landmark is considered by many to be San Francisco's most beautiful structure. The 24-carat gilded dome soars 306 feet above the newly refurbished building, reopened in January 1999. Internal highlights include birdcage elevators, crystal chandeliers, oak paneling and skylights, all of which have survived three fires and a major earthquake. City Hall features art exhibits on the ground floor, including photography, painting and crafts. Free tours highlighting building history, art and architecture are available daily. For more information call the Docent Tour Hotline at 415-554-6023.
- Golden Gate Park – This Park is most easily accessed off 19th Avenue. Since parking is often difficult, public transportation is the best way to go. Go any day, any time, although Sundays are especially nice because cars are not allowed on John F. Kennedy Drive, the park's main thoroughfare. Golden Gate Park offers gardens, lakes, waterfalls, a Victorian conservatory, a bandstand concourse, the Japanese Tea Garden ($4.00 admission) 8:30 am – 5:30 pm 415-668-0909, a polo field, a golf course, massive lawns and athletic fields, and a first-rate children's playground.
- Palace Of Fine Arts – A remnant of San Francisco's glorious past, this exquisite arts and science complex pulses in the heart of the Marina District. Designed by architect Bernard Maybeck, the Palace of Fine Arts was built in 1915 for the Panama Pacific Exposition that celebrated both the completion of the Panama Canal and the rebirth of San Francisco following the 1906 earthquake. Built as a temporary structure, however, it soon began to crumble and was eventually reconstructed-in a stripped-down version of Maybeck's original-in the early '60s.
- Coit Tower – An eye-catching landmark featuring “Work Progress Administration” murals and beautiful views. As a tribute to the men who tried to save San Francisco in 1906, Lilly Coit designated that her legacy be used for the beautification of her beloved city. The views here are spectacular, but if you want to look out from the tower's top, you'd best go during daylight, as Coit Tower generally closes at 5pm. Though the mural gallery and gift shop are free, it'll cost you $4.50 for adults and $2.00 for children to ride the elevator to the top. If you don't like heights, look in nearby trees; believe it or not, a flock of wild parrots lives in the neighborhood. For more information call 415-362-0808.
- SF MOMA – With a finger on technology's pulse, this premier West Coast modern-art venue just keeps getting better. The San Francisco Museum of Modern Art put itself back on the map in January 1995, the day it moved downtown into Mario Botta's fab postmodern jewel with the brick facade and striped oculus skylight. The move unleashed an unprecedented flood of important acquisitions and renewed public interest. In addition to showcasing its far-ranging permanent collection, the museum serves as a frequent stopping-off point for prestigious traveling blockbusters. The museum is also a hot spot for the latest digital and high-tech installations. If you really want to see the museum, make a day of it. SF MOMA has the second-largest exhibition space of any modern museum in the country, just behind New York City's Museum of Modern Art. It is located at 151 Third St - 415-357-4000.
- Asian Art Museum – The Asian Art Museum is one of the largest museums in the Western World devoted exclusively to Asian art. Its holdings include nearly 15,000 treasures spanning 6,000 years of history, representing cultures throughout Asia. The museum's new home is the result of the rehabilitation and adaptive reuse of the city's former Main Library, a 1917 beaux arts-style building. Admission is only $12 for adults, $8 for seniors, $7 for children twelve and up and children under twelve are free. Renowned architect Gae Aulenti oversaw the dramatic transformation of the building which now features 40,000 square feet of gallery space. It is located at 200 Larkin St - 415-581-3500 Sunday-Saturdays.

Staff Tips

Whether you plan on riding the bus or jumping on the Cable Cars – consider buying a One, Three or Seven day “unlimited usage” passport for the public transportation systems ($11, $18 and $24 respectively). These passes can be purchased from the Holiday Inn gift shop located at 1500 Van Ness Ave @ California St or at the Cable Car turnaround points at Fisherman’s Wharf and Union Square. Otherwise, the cost of the Cable Car is $5 per person per ride and the bus is $1.50 for Adults and Children, and .50c for Senior Citizens. Remember that in San Francisco, no matter how sunny it is out-side, take a sweater because the wind is lurking just around the corner!
